Ardmore, Monday, November 29, 1915.

A CLOSING DATE

All things terrestrial, we are taught, must have an end, and the committee of citizens who have been settling claims with the Santa Fe Railway Co., have fixed a date for the work of that committee to end. Those who do not file claims by the 4th day of December, with the committee, will not have the privilege of doing so. When that day arrives, it will have been 56 days since the explosion occurred. Any person who received an injury, should be able to learn of it by that time, and those whose injuries were severe, will have a reasonably clear idea of their extent by that time, and all claims can be intelligently and justly settled. Ardmore folks are not different from other folks, and claims keep coming in from persons who hope to share in the distribution of funds. It is a weakness of human nature to conclude that injuries to health have been caused by any catastrophe, and the Ardmore disaster has not been an exception. Only recently persons have discovered that they have been injured and have filed their claims. They are not to be censured for it, for as we have just stated, it is a weakness of human nature, and that weakness is accentuated when there is hope of obtaining remuneration for that injury. The committee has a difficult task in weeding out these claims in a manner that justice in every instance will be done, and it requires much patience with those who are of the opinion that they are suffering from the effects of the explosion.

The Santa Fe adjusters have done and are doing a magnanimous piece of

The Man Who
"Wants to Know"

The whole world doffs its hat to the man who knows his world from travel experience.

To the man who has traveled much or none at all—to the man who plans to travel—or the man who never expects to—the

are equally valuable

For they open up the high-ways and byways and bring the whole world to the work. They have been so fair and so generous that the committee has been relieved of many laborious duties, but these men cannot stay here for all time to come, and the closing date of the filing of claims has now been extended much farther than any of us expected when the work of making settlements was begun. This action of the committee seems to have met with the general approval of the people, as it deserves to.

THE DEATH PENALTY
ABHORRENT

There is an ever increasing opposition to capital punishment. The recent execution of Joseph Hillstrom in Utah has caused the press of the country to comment both for and against the death penalty. That Hillstrom was executed was only just. He was sentenced after a fair trial. He twice appealed to the president of the United States, and all of the political influence of the I. W. W., of which he was a leader, was exercised in his behalf.

Had he not been conspicuous in the cause of labor and had he not been to a certain extent a spectacular character, his execution would have been carried out without unnecessary comment.

In Utah the condemned have the right to choose for themselves whether or they would prefer to be shot or whether hanged. Hillstrom accepted the former penalty and died like a coward. It was probably because he was shot that newspapers seized upon the execution as a news item of unusual interest.

It is the habit of the I. W. W. to protest the innocence of their members whenever they are charged with crime. This is loyalty, but it is not altogether compatible with law and justice.

At the same time, since the execution of Hillstrom has created so much interest, it is timely to call attention to the fact that some day, and the day is not so distant, capital punishment will be abolished. Because of the publicity given to the Hillstrom case this growing opposition to capital punishment is more apparent.

A tremendous agitation was aroused in behalf of Hillstrom because he was not an American, but a citizen of Sweden. This properly should not have interfered with the enforcement of the law. Americans have been sentenced to death in other countries for murder. The Swedish minister did what he could, but the double murder of Morrison, father and son, was so brutal and the proof so conclusive that the governor saw no reason for interfering with the course of the law.

The fact remains that the opposition to capital punishment grows stronger every day and soon more humane methods of punishing violent crimes will be adopted.—Commercial Appeal.

TIMES SOLD OUT

Wednesday myself and associates purchased the entire capital stock of The Times company, publisher of The Oklahoma Times, Mr. John Fields, and Mr. Frank Northrup retiring from the business.

The Times will be continued as a publishing enterprise devoted to chronicling the news, while it is news, without garbling, misrepresentation or suppression; advocating the principles of republicanism, and constructive in every purpose.

Associated in its ownership and conduct will be some of the most responsible and capable men of the state and southwest. The paper has practically doubled its circulation within the past four months, while its business patronage has shown a like increase. In both respects the appreciation continues gratifying, giving assurance that it has a field of its own and before it a long, useful and prosperous career.

T. A. LATTA, Publisher.

The above modest notice appeared recently in The Oklahoma Times. John Fields, former candidate for governor, owned a substantial interest in the paper, and retired from the field. He also owned The Oklahoma Farm Journal and sold it at the same time to Arthur Capper, of Topeka, Kas., a well known editor of a string of farm papers.

Mr. Latta has changed The Times from the independent to the republican class of papers. He is a forceful, fearless writer and the republicans who have been wishing for a party paper at the capital ought to be pleased with Mr. Latta. The republicans have had a difficult time trying to maintain a paper in Oklahoma since statehood, and probably realizing what he was about to encounter, Mr. Latta announces that he has some prominent persons associated with him.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes

In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has stood the test and been approved for more than forty years. Obtainable everywhere.

How to Prevent Croup.

It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Ellida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boys are subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough, I would give him one or two doses of it, and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.

Grady, Stephens and Jefferson counties in which about one-third of the Indian land is restricted. Many Choctaws selected their allotments and surplus lands here but a majority of them live in the former Choctaw nation. Some of them are receiving handsome incomes from oil and gas royalties.

Some of the surplus Choctaw lands of Jefferson county are to be offered for sale at Waurika, Nov. 30, under direction of the Indian agent at Chickasha. Eighteen tracts to be offered contain 1,574 acres and the total appraisement is $24,680. The terms are one-third cash and the remainder in six and twelve months.

EVERY HOME NEEDS A FAITHFUL
FUL COME AND COLD REMEDY

When seasons change and colds appear—when you first detect a cold after sitting next to one who has sneezed, then it is that a tried and tested remedy should be faithfully used. "I never wrote a testimonial before, but I know positively that for myself and family, Dr. King's New Discovery is the best cough remedy we ever used and we have tried them all." 50c and $1.00.

His Unlucky Date.

On September 27,—we all remember what happened on that date—the gasoline explosion. Allen Crosby was hurt on that date by falling glass in the business college. On October 27 he was hurt very badly by an automobile tire blowing out, cutting his face so badly that he had to have the wound sewed up at the sanitarium. And on last Saturday, Nov. 27, he had the misfortune of shooting off two of his toes on his left foot. He is at present at the Hardy sanitarium, and is doing as well as could be expected,—awaiting the next twenty-seventh.
